▼ How to use the information

When Tsunami warnings are issued, people at seashores or riversides must immediately evacuate to a higher ground or upper floors of a safe building.

Tsunami waves may repeat. Don't leave the safe place until Tsunami warnings are released.

Try to evacuate to the highest possible place.

People in the sea should also move to shore and evacuate to a higher ground.

Do not go back to the sea or shore until tsunami warning is released. Other Tsunami waves may follow.

When Tsunami alerts are issued, do not go sea-bathing or fishing.

If tremors are felt nearby the sea, run towards a higher ground.

Following Tsunami waves may be higher and repeating.
