

DOCOMO named an Asia IP Elite organization in 2022

In May 2022, DOCOMO was named as one of the Asia IP Elite 2022 by Intellectual Asset Management (IAM, headquartered in London, UK), an internationally renowned intellectual property media company. A total of 80 companies and organizations (including 20 companies in Japan), that have placed intellectual property at the core of their business strategy, were selected for this list in order to showcase exemplary initiatives for the creation of intellectual property in the Asia-Pacific region.

DOCOMO was selected for its efforts to promote the international standardization of mobile communications in cooperation with major players in the telecommunications field both in Japan and overseas, such as the promotion of patent licenses for the current mainstream fourth-generation (LTE) mobile communications system and the acquisition of patents for the upcoming fifth-generation (5G) mobile communications system, while at the same time utilizing and acquiring intellectual property in parallel. This recognition is a result of the efforts that DOCOMO's R&D and intellectual property organizations have cultivated together.

DOCOMO will continue to cultivate its R&D technological capabilities, engage in research and development, and promote intellectual property activities that contribute to business in order to pave the way to the future of mobile communications that it envisions.
